M.A. THESIS SUBJECT

The Study of Constructional Schemas of Tripartite Exocentric Compounds in Persian: An Analysis within the Framework of Construction Morphology Theory. (19.25 out of 20)
(Supervisor Dr. Sahar Bahrami-Khorshid, Assistant Professor, Sep. 2020)
This thesis is an attempt to explore the tripartite exocentric compounds of Persian –except reduplication and onomatopoeia- within the framework of Construction Morphology theory. The approach of this research is construction-based and tried to examine metaphorical and semantic content of above-mentioned compounds and justify the word-formation pattern of them based on concept of "construction" and "constructional schemas".
